To answer your question...essentially yes those minor (drug related) arrests were down...but it wasn't all of Part I arrests that rose...it was Violent Crime Arrests.

As far as the numbers...I still haven't heard anything...but I would hope that you will be able to identify we were able to get you partial information for 2016. (That is correct no?)

Hi Josh,

Just wanted to see if there was any update on your end about the numbers we're looking for. We plan to run the story online this week and in print during the weekend, so would need the numbers by 5 p.m. today to include them in the story.

Also, was Chief Malinowski or your contact in CompStat ever able to answer the fourth question in the email I sent last week? Here it is...

4. Finally: During my interview with Chief Beck, he noted that despite the decline in overall arrests, the number of Part 1 arrests had risen from 2014-2016. Is it accurate to say then that a decrease in arrests for minor crimes – Part 2 crimes – are driving the decline in overall arrests?

Thanks,
